"The tone scale is actually to be considered as a circle rather than as a straight line."

"From too much love of living, from too much hope set free, we thank with lips unmoving whatever gods may be, that no love lasts forever, that dead men rise up never, and even the weariest river winds somewhere safe to sea."

"The highest ability we can have is the power to say no."

"Unless a man lose his life, he shall not find it."

1A Would this be a good time to consider our fundamental agreements, early and recent, and what discriminations may have become advisable? It seems to me that a better bridge among ourselves can use such facts to the advantage of our mutual purposes.

1B To illustrate: when discussing the natural laws of thought, do we still use geometric comparisons? By such methods, could we speak (and be understood) concerning the graphic modes - punctual, linear, plane, and whole - the last being the actual area of thought, the others being merely allotments of energy when communicating ideas. How say you?

1C Again: we place Identification at 0, Association at 20, Differentiation at 40. Would you say, then, that Discrimination occurs at all points, being the actual means of calibration?
